

The archive preserves public links¹ while courts cite online sources².

The court discusses preservation doctrine³ and archival remedies⁴.

Later analysis adds statutory context⁵ and agency practice⁶.

The final paragraph cites empirical evidence⁷ and institutional design⁸.

A concluding sentence has a penultimate note⁹ and a two-digit note¹⁰.

Table 1. A visible table number must not become a footnote marker.

-
- 1 First legal footnote body with a cited source.
 - 2 Second legal footnote body with an online archive reference.
 - 3 Third legal footnote body starts on one line and continues on the following line without a new label.
 - 4 Fourth legal footnote body with a statutory reference.
 - 5 Fifth legal footnote body with quoted authority.
 - 6 Sixth legal footnote body with a policy source.
 - 7 Seventh legal footnote body with empirical context.
 - 8 Eighth legal footnote body with institutional detail.
 - 9 Ninth legal footnote body with a final source.
 - 10 Tenth legal footnote body verifies two-digit labels.